Rowie Shaundlin Shebala Spoken Word

Rowie Shaundlin Shebala, a Native American spoken word artist of the Dine' (Navajo) Tribe, was born and raised on the Navajo Nation. Given the gift of storytelling from her father she combines story, poetry, and performance. Rowie constantly brings the voice of her heritage into her performance and written work, often treading into spaces where hearing native voices is unlikely. Rowie has been on four National Poetry Slam Teams, and has been a three time Women of the World Poetry Slam Representative and an Individual of the World Poetry Slam Representative. She has been featured on Button Poetry, Indian Country News Today, published in various zines and magazines such as Annick Press, Red Ink Magazine, out of Tucson, AZ, Wicked Banshee Press, an online Women's Publication, and Suspect Press out of Denver Colorado. She has performed at Lincoln Center Out of Doors, with La Casita in New York City, NY.
