Kristian Macaron Spoken Word

Kristian Macaron (she/her(s)/ella), is from and resides in Albuquerque, New Mexico, a land full of treasures. Her writing is inspired by this colorful landscape and explores tales that derive from connections to her Hispanic/Latinx and Lebanese-American heritage, but also her love for cryptids, portals, geology, and time travel. Kristian received an MFA in Creative Writing Fiction from Emerson College (2012) and a BA from University of New Mexico (2010). Her full-length poetry collection Recipe for Time Travel in Case We Lose Each Other was released from Game Over Books Publications in February 2022. Her poetry chapbook Storm was released in 2015 from Swimming with Elephants Publications. Other prose and poetry publications can be found in Asimov's Science Fiction Magazine, Uncanny Magazine, The Normal School Magazine, Gargoyle Magazine, and others. She is a 2024 Poetry Fellow at Chatter and works and teaches at the University of New Mexico.
